Abstract

Creative writing is anything where the purpose is to express the thoughts, feelings and emotions rather than simply convey information. Hence, other view creative writing as being able to produce noble works in writing; working on one's own imagination and putting it on a piece of paper to create an exceptional good and interesting literature. Pictures, postcards, charts and even wordless picture books offer a wonderful foundation of creative writing. It offers a platform for the students to develop their writing skills. But how does a picture imaginative material make an individual creative writing?

This study aimed to determine the creative writing skills of the respondents exposed and not exposed to picture imaginative materials. Specifically, it sought answers to the following sub-problems: 1. What is the respondents' creative writing skills in poem when exposed and not exposed to picture material images? 2. What is the respondents' creative writing skills in essay when exposed and not exposed to picture material images? 3. Is there a significant difference in the creative writing skills of the respondents' in poem when exposed and not exposed to picture imaginative materials? 4. Is there a significant difference in the creative writing skills of the respondents' in essay when exposed and not exposed to picture imaginative materials? The study utilized the experimental method of research where the study respondents were classified as to controlled and experimental group.
