Giveaway Project 2024

July 2 - August 1, 2024

With their support, each school bag became more than just a pack—it became a symbol of belonging, encouragement, and belief in a better tomorrow. These were not ordinary donations; they were faith-filled investments in the leaders, teachers, and innovators of the future.

Futures: Back to School Giveaway Project 2024

In the quiet corners of a public school classroom, where dreams are often whispered rather than shouted, the simple gift of a backpack filled with supplies can be life-changing. This year, the University of Perpetual Help System Laguna, through its dedicated Community Outreach Department (COD), turned that quiet hope into a resounding affirmation of potential through its flagship initiative, “Small Packs, Big Futures: Back to School Giveaway Project 2024.”

This heartfelt program provided complete sets of school supplies to student beneficiaries of Dr. Jose G. Tamayo Memorial Elementary School, ensuring they were equipped not just for another academic year—but for the pursuit of their dreams. With every pencil sharpened and every notebook opened, UPHSL reaffirmed its mission of nurturing lives and building a future where no child is left behind because of lack.

This initiative was made possible by the overwhelming generosity of the Support Service Departments of UPHSL, in strong partnership with Councilor Haide Estipular of Brgy. Sto. Niño, Biñan City. Their collective support became the backbone of the project, proving once again that collaboration can bridge the gap between what is and what could be.

UPHSL's Back to School Giveaway Project 2024 Sparks Hope in Every Backpack

Beyond the physical act of giving, “Small Packs, Big Futures” stood as a testament to UPHSL’s ongoing commitment to service through love, learning, and leadership. It reminds us that when institutions, families, and communities come together in shared mission, even the smallest act can ripple into something profound.

This program is a powerful embodiment of what it means to be a Perpetualite—a helper of God, driven to uplift others through purposeful action. It echoes the heartbeat of the university's calling: to form individuals not just academically, but morally and spiritually, guided by compassion and a desire to serve.

As the academic year begins anew, so too does the promise that these children will walk into their classrooms feeling seen, supported, and inspired—thanks to a pack on their backs and a community that believes in their future.

Together, we are not just giving school supplies—we are building a nation, one student at a time.
