On January 13, 2025, the University of Perpetual Help System Laguna (UPHSL) established a five-year partnership with Barangay Sto. Niño, City of Biñan, Laguna, marking the beginning of a collaborative initiative focused on community outreach, livelihood development, and sustainable growth.

Through this partnership, UPHSL commits to sharing its institutional resources, expertise, and services to implement community-based programs aligned with the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). The collaboration aims to promote inclusive development, strengthen community engagement, and provide meaningful opportunities for local residents.

One of the key beneficiaries of this initiative is the Kababaihan ng Maliliit na Namumuhunan, Inc. (KMNI) of Barangay Sto. Niño, an organization supporting women and mothers engaged in small-scale livelihood activities. Through livelihood development programs, skills training, and capacity-building initiatives, UPHSL aims to empower its members to enhance their entrepreneurial capabilities, improve their micro-businesses, and create sustainable sources of income for their families.

This partnership demonstrates the university's commitment to extending its educational and institutional resources beyond the campus by addressing community needs and supporting inclusive economic opportunities. It also highlights the importance of collaboration between higher education institutions and community organizations in advancing sustainable development.

Through this five-year partnership, UPHSL and Barangay Sto. Niño look forward to creating lasting community impact, empowering women entrepreneurs, and contributing to a more inclusive, resilient, and sustainable future.
